

Local News Archives Vol I

Hateful teen summons dark forces against Sunwing for bringing parents back.

Basement – Things got worse this week for the embattled budget carrier after it learned it may have to deal with evil netherworld forces. “They’re just stupid that’s all!” Shrieked an inconsolable 17 year-old, Marnie Cluster. “I hate them, they’re stupid and I hate them! It was great when they were stuck in Mexico! Then stupidwing finally got their shit together and now they’re coming home and I hate it!” When reached for comment her parents sighed and expressed some mild concern about area vandalism.

Local teen turns Mom’s Navage sinus cleaner into kick-ass weed pipe.

Brampton – “I knew there was a reason I got her one for Christmas!” Said 17 year-old Tyler Reddick. “I guess I saw the commercial so many times it kinda became like a subliminal thing repeating – buy me, modify me, get totally wasted! I mean, Moms was kinda weirded out I bought it for her in the first place, so she’s chill, but man, this baby works fer reals, you’ll be on the carpet flapping like a duck! I mean POW right to the brain! No middle man! I blasted some Sativa with it this morning and thought my pillow was a talking seal!”

“Meth Pigeon” gets own episode of Hinterland Who’s Who.

Abbotsford – “When not freaking out other animals with its erratic and explosive behavior, the Meth Pigeon can be found withdrawn and sullen roosting under damp buildings. Although normally mild-mannered it is given to fits of rage and hallucination. The Meth Pigeon prefers a temperate climate making the B.C. coast the perfect place for them to flourish. If approached by a Meth Pigeon, smile politely and walk the other way, avoiding anything that could be misconstrued as aggressive behavior.”

Nelson, B.C. funeral director on mission to save polar bears.

Nelson –

Svend Dillson is the founder of ‘Bear In Mind’, an alternative funeral home that feeds hungry bears by dropping human cadavers onto ice floes in Canada's arctic. Says Dillson, "The death of a loved one is always difficult. But, Bear In Mind lends comfort by reversing the negative effects of your thoughtless and selfish personal contributions to climate change!!" (Retired human resources director Jane Kimbel seen here after donating body to Bear in Mind.) Dillson is also developing a ‘Third World Cadaver Offset Program’ whereby clients can instead pay bereaved people in the world's poorest countries to donate bodies to hungry Nunavut bears. "It's a win-win situation," says Dillson. The system is also being studied by provincial governments facing health-care overloads.

First Christmas cake ever years away from expiry.

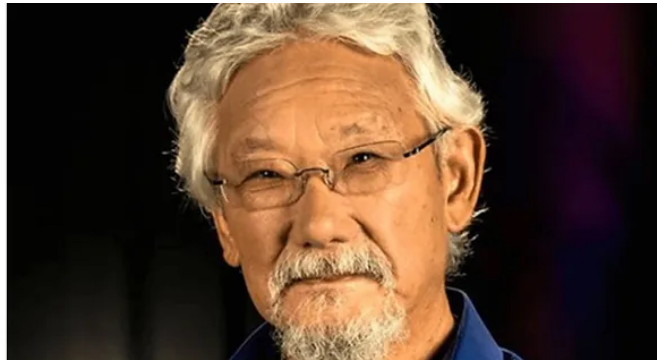

Merry Christmas from the hard working staff at The Canadianer!

Paleolithic toaster discovered.

Drumheller – In the era just before man discovered that they could also toast four pieces of bread at once, early man was relegated to the crude two slice stone toaster. Archaeologists were astounded to find one in such pristine condition.

Dr. David Suzuki retires, plans on idling SUV and “If we don’t like it we can suckit.”

Montreal – “Hey I paid my dues!” Said a visibly agitated Suzuki from the parking lot of a fast food restaurant. “I spent years trying to get people to take an interest in the environment but did anyone listen!? Noooooo! Well, I get to be the a-hole now! At least I did something! Baby, I’ve got a Chevy Tahoe and this beast is ready to prow!”

10 Million dollar report on Ottawa LRT line concludes it sucks.

Ottawa – “It’s a beautiful report though!” Said former Mayor, Jim Watson, who oversaw the project. “Glossy pages, beautifully bound, and it has a great heft, y’know, like you really feel like you’re reading something important. You can read the whole thing in about 7 hours...stuck between stops on the train... go Sens!”

“Based on your picks” streaming option sends area man into self-doubt spiral.

Moncton – “Why would they think I’d like Firefly Lane because I watched two episodes of Comedians in Cars? Why the hell is Charlie Wilson’s War in the Comedy category? What does it all mean? Are they telling me I’m wasting my life? Why did my wife leave? Is it because I keep watching Moneyball? And why do they think I’ll like whatever this piece of shit is because I like Moneyball?”

Lottery winners might buy meat.

Thunder Bay - The lucky family that shared a winning ‘Bucks-a-Rama’ ticket worth 3.4 million dollars is considering splurging on a few nice T-bones they saw down at the Loblaw’s. “We’re not sure yet!” Said Marv Tinklish, “I mean it’s great to have this kinda cash but we don’t wanna fritter it away, like when you read about people that went nuts when they won some lottery then got suckered and they live on the street now. It’s just meat, it’ll come back to sane prices...right?”

Hamilton Harbour's stunning lakeshore view in jeopardy.

Hamilton – The treasured jewel of Canada's waterways...is in trouble. Roughly 337 million tons of raw sewage have spilled into the harbour since 1996, the leak apparently caused by ruptured pipes. While the estimated cost of repair isn't prohibitive, local divers have been reluctant, one saying "You frickin' nuts? I'm not divin' in that shit!"

Self Check-out machine jeers first time user.

Winnipeg - "Sure, okay, maybe I'm not the sharpest knife, but it was way out of line to comment on my pants, and sure, I put on a few pounds over the pandemic, but I'm trying!" Said Winnipeg resident, Karl Duggins. "People started to gather and laugh, the machine really had me, they're intimidating! But at least it's not as obnoxious as the passive-aggressive suggested tip bullshit!"

Local narcissist believes all power ballads are written about him.

Kamloops – “Did she call? God I miss her.”

Kars 4 Kids band break up amidst bitter in-fighting, drummer OD's.

Hell - The world will sleep a bit better.

Dad declares Thanksgiving apple crumble "Still good!"

Kelowna – “It was behind the pickles in the fridge! Kids! Hey kids, you guys should have some of this, it’s fine! Kids?!”

Man buys 3RD Tesla, saves the planet again.

Toronto – “It was another 180 grand, but I thought this precious Earth was worth it” said a Forest Hill cosmetic dentist. A dentist the Canadianer learned was 46 yr-old internationally tanned, Brad Upshaw. Reached for comment en route to his tennis club, Upshaw was happy to show off his latest acquisition. “This one has the satin black racing stripes, they’re an extra 20 k, but it’s a subtle nod to Batman, a superhero I identify with, except for that part of having a flawed aspect to his personality.” Tesla is the automotive manufacturer owned by Elon Musk whose personal fortune is estimated to be ‘Going to Another Planet Rich’.

Couple that married at Dufferin mall Cinnabon divorcing at King west Galaxy donuts.

Parkdale –

“Hey, it was a good weekend, then it all just went into the crapper like right away, so we decided it was best. Galaxy made sense because you can actually get a legal annulment...turns out it’s a pretty popular place.”